The Low-emission zone in Aachen

Short introduction

As of 1st February, 2016, Aachen will have an "Umweltzone" (Environmental Zone or Low-Emission Zone). From that date onwards, only vehicles with a Green Sticker or a special permit will be allowed to enter the Environmental Zone.

For the most part, the boundary of the Environmental Zone follows Aachen's outer ring road and includes all the streets and roads within the designated area.

The City of Aachen's website features an Environmental Zone page that covers everything you need to know on the topic. You'll find a range of useful information there:

- Green Sticker: Where do I get one? (German, Dutch, French and English)
- Exemptions and application procedures (German)
- Frequently Asked Questions (German)
- Press releases (German)

The webpage you are currently visiting – www.aachen.de/umweltzone – will be continuously and promptly updated and maintained.

Whether you are in or outside Germany, you can use the following email address to request further information and to ask questions in your own national language: umweltzone@mail.aachen.de.

Green Sticker: Where do I get one?

If you want to get a Green Sticker for your vehicle, you will need to present your vehicle registration document or Registration Certificate Part 1. This document contains a certain combination of numbers and letters that indicates whether you qualify to be granted a Green Sticker for the vehicle in question.

The sticker costs between five and fifteen euros, depending on the provider. You can get one – in person or online – from any of the following authorities or agencies in the City and Municipal Region of Aachen:

1. Straßenverkehrsamt

(Road Traffic Licensing Authority)

located in the business park near the motorway junction "Aachener Kreuz"

Carlo-Schmid-Straße 4
